* No advances have been made for the improvement of land, there being no applications for them. It is, however, in contemplation to give such loans in future. There was no application for agricultural loans from 1892-93 to 1898-99. In the year 1899-1900, some ryots applied for Takvi advances and Rs. 5,000 was sanctioned for the purpose, but only Rs. 381 was taken. Of this, Rs. 305 has been realised, leaving an outstanding balance of Rs. 76.

* The cash amounts shown as advances to agriculturists consist mainly of paddy lent to the ryots from the State granaries at an interest of 25 per cent. The value of the paddy has been estimated at the market rate in force in different years. Both cash and paddy were advanced in the year 1899-1900, that year being a year of famine.

† The figures represent Takāvi advances given and recovered on account of scarcity or partial failure of crops in some years.

* The people of this State are said to be conservative in the matter of wages, which do not rise or fall according to demand. The labouring class would go without work rather than reduce the rate of wages, while the employers would not get their work done if they refused the wage demanded.
